So I've written a whole book about starting a street food business, from the ground up. I have christened it "Street Food Soliloquy", in honour of its online origins. It's lost a proportion of the waffle, tries to stay on track slightly more than the blog does and is now available in paperback. Before anyone thinks I have a proper ...

A month or so back I was contacted by the Welsh Rural Development Agency, who are working on actively building the street food scene in North East Wales. They were holding a series of workshops, including one about starting a street food business, and invited me to lead it. And they were offering actual money in exchange.

Talking About Street Food | The Jabberwocky Soliloquy

Street food is ready-to-eat food or drink sold by a hawker, or vendor, in a street or other public place, such as at a market or fair. It is often sold from a portable food booth, food cart, or food truck and meant for immediate consumption. Some street foods are regional, but many have spread beyond their region of origin. Most street foods are classed as both finger food and fast food, and ...

Start Me Up. People are forever asking our advice on getting started in street food. Most recently, a new trader wanted to know if a pearlescent paint finish was really the way to go in 2015. Apart from directing them here, and here, we struggled to answer. There's The Complete Guide To Profitable Catering by Bob Fox, but I don't think Bob tackles paint finishes.
